

Problem: Cache thrashing: When multiple cores spin on a shared lock variable, each core repeatedly reads the lock variable. When one core execute TAS on the lock variable, the memory location of the shared lock variable becomes invalid on other cores (i.e. this core invalidates all other cores). Creates excessive traffic on memory bus.